

Officials Appreciation Week

September 7 – September 13

The week of September 7 through September 13 is Officials Appreciation Week. Officials are mothers, fathers, husbands, wives, sons, daughters, and friends. These unique individuals officiate because they love the activity and have found a way to give back to the activity and the youth who play it. They spend many nights away from their families each week to provide our students the opportunity to participate. They have no stake in a contest other than their love of the game. They are not going to get every call right; they are human, but without them, games cannot be played. Please show respect and appreciation to all officials, not just tonight or during officials' appreciation week, but every game. Let's give our officials for tonight's contest a round of applause